Hawkins Coming With Remarkable Photographs Taken In the Heart of the North Woods

CHAUNCEY HAWKINS, prominent author and lecturer, was formerly one of the best known of our big game hunters. A few years ago he gave up the gun for the camera and has since become recognized as one of the most adventurous and successful wild animal photographers in the country. He has had unusual success in photographing moose, bear, deer and other big game native to our North American Continent.

His lecture at Chautauqua, "Wild Hearts and Bright Eyes of Our Northern Woods," will be illustrated with some of his wonderful pictures. Hawkins is one of the most sought after men on the Chautauqua platform, and his illustrated lecture will be one of the longest remembered events of the entire week.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS

The Board of Supervisors met in regular session Monday, May 21st, at 10 a. m., there being present Dr. C. V. Thompson, presiding, T. L. Hickey, Wm. H. Brown, John MacBain and Jos. M. Francis.

A communication from D. Gordon Bromfield congratulating the board on the splendid piece of road work recently constructed on the ridge of the mountain leading from the Halfmoon Bay road south toward King's Mountain, was received and ordered filed.

A communication was received from the agents of the Guardian Casualty and Guaranty Company in San Francisco notifying the board that the Federal Construction Company, who had been recently given the contract for the construction of the state highway in part of Wellesley Park in Redwood City, has taken out workmen's compensation insurance. The communication was ordered filed.

Petitions were received from C. B. Rich, owner of a large tract of land at Vallemar and C. Pappas, asking for permits to raise more than 50 hogs near Vallemar, which is about 8 miles from the town of Colma. When the petitions had been read District Attorney Swart addressed the board and voiced his opinion in favor of granting the petitions. He stated that he believed it behooved everybody in San Mateo county to encourage the raising of hogs, Rich, himself, was present and addressed the board in behalf of his petition. T. J. Jordan also spoke in favor of the industry. All the members of the board expressed themselves as strongly inclined to grant the petitions, but at the suggestion of Supervisor Hickey, in whose district the two places in question are situated, it was decided to visit the premises in a body and make an investigation of the surroundings before taking any action.

Mrs. H. L. Dana of the County Social Committee appeared before the board and presented the credentials of Miss Elizabeth Skeele, who had been selected by the commissioners at a salary of $90 a month to act as secretary.

Mrs. Dana asked the board to ratify Miss Skeele's appointment, which was done, on motion of MacBain seconded by Francis, Miss Skeele was present at the meeting and was introduced to the members.

On motion of MacBain seconded by Hickey, the board voted to allow the new secretary the use of the office on the first floor of the courthouse that had been occupied by the public administrator.

A communication was received from Dr. John R. Hayes, chairman of the committee on relief of the State Council of Defense, asking the board to provide in the next tax budget for the coming fiscal year an increase of 25 per cent in the appropriation for relief work in the county. The communication was ordered filed.

A communication addressed to Supervisor Hickey was read from Mrs. Henry Ward Brown asking the supervisors' permission to use the name of the board as a recommendation when she presents herself for entrance to the honor squad at the woman's training camp to be held at the Presidio in San Francisco next month. The request of Mrs. Brown was granted, on motion of Hickey seconded by MacBain.

Fred Walther, proprietor of the Valley Inn at Portola, whose application for a liquor license had been held up, appeared before the board to answer to the charges that had been made against him for not conducting his place of business in accordance to the county ordinance. Walther was represented by Edw. F. Fitzpatrick. District Attorney Swart carried on the investigation and called the following witnesses to the stand, some of whom testified that Walther's place was allowed to be kept open after 11 o'clock in the night and others that liquor was sold to intoxicated persons and that dancing was carried on in the rear of the saloon without a permit. George Empey, formerly employed at the Tea Gardens near Portola and who had been arrested about a month ago on suspicion of having robbed Henry Tamaki, a Japanese servant, but afterwards released; Edwin Peterson, foreman of the Tea Gardens; Donald Feltz, Valentine Pease, patrons of the saloon and Tamaki, the above mentioned Japanese. To offset the testimony of these witnesses, Walther, through his attorney, produced several witnesses to show that the place had always been conducted properly and in accordance with the law. The application was denied for the present, but a further hearing will be had on July 2.

E. W. Florence, district manager of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., appeared before the board and asked permission to hang the candlepower of the lights in the Belmont lighting district so as to reduce the cost per light from $2.50 per month to $2.15 per month. The request was granted and change ordered made on motion of Brown seconded by Francis.

County Auditor J. J. Shields addressed the board in reference to three claims he was holding up, one of Mary J. Hatch in sum of $82.50, for rent of a building used as a jail; one of E. C. Laaswell amounting to $5, and two of George W. Snelder, all three of which were for work done in connection with the burial of indigents. On motion of MacBain seconded by Brown, the above claims were ordered referred to District Attorney Swart for his opinion.

A communication was received from Edward M. Chadbourne informing the board that he had been authorized by the town trustees of Redwood City to repair Broadway in that city from the Southern Pacific tracks to Main street with Bitucrete surfacing. Chadbourne asked the supervisors to sign up the contract so as to take care of the strip fronting the courthouse property. On motion of MacBain seconded by Hickey, the board agreed to enter into the above contract with the understanding that the contractor agree to guarantee the work for a year's time.

The board adjourned at 3:30 p. m. to Wednesday, May 23rd, at which time the members will meet and make an inspection of the hog situation in the north end of the county, so as to take action with regards to the petitions received at the morning session for permission to keep a large number of hogs.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER

TRUSTEES IN SESSION

The street committee of the Chamber of Commerce composed of J. B. Perry, chairman, Asa Hull and John MacBain, waited upon the Board of Trustees Monday evening to encourage action on the improvement of Main street and Broadway under contracts with Blanchard, Brown & Company.

Because of technicalities the contracts are to be passed upon by the supreme court and this may take several years. The contractors also have a contract to pave the shoulders on the highway, which is also in court. They expressed a willingness to go ahead with the Main street and Broadway contracts if the board would release them from their highway contract. The committee brought forth the need of the paving of the principal streets and the loss that would be incurred by waiting for a court decision. City Attorney Mansfield gave a report of how the situation stood and the desire of the contractors to do the paving on Main street and Broadway. The board unanimously decided to accept the proposition of Blanchard, Brown & Co. and hold off on the highway shoulder contract and the contractors are to complete the other two jobs in short time. The other contract will be continued without effect so that a decision may be had from the court. The matter was placed in the hands of City Attorney Mansfield to complete arrangements with the contractors that they may begin work at once. Among those who were with the committee were: Geo. H. Irving, Walter Baker, Nelson Andrews, C. F. Morel and D. R. Stafford.

The application of the Redwood City Athletic Club of which Jos. A. Roza is president and Thos. F. Curran is secretary, for a permit to hold four-round boxing matches in this city received a severe grilling from Trustee Merrill. He scored those who had signed the petition and introduced a motion that a hearing be held on June 4th in the matter. The motion was unanimously passed.

All city employees who have been receiving $2.10 for a day's work will receive $3 per day after June 1st. Also a man and team will be paid for at the rate of $6 per day instead of $5 as heretofore. This action was taken after the matter had been brought to the attention of the board by Trustee Tuchen. Mrs. N. R. Miramontes, a deputy in the town hall, was also granted an increase of $15 per month.

The board instructed the clerk to request the Southern Pacific to install permanent crossings on Main street and Broadway to conform with the pavement.

Louis Berry was granted a junk dealer's license.

Fire insurance on the chemical fire truck was ordered renewed through E. B. Fox as resident agent.

Seventy feet was established as the width of Vera avenue by resolution.

A weed abatement ordinance under new legislation passed by the recent legislature was adopted to apply to lots on improved streets in Redwood Highlands. Similar ordinances will be adopted for other parts of town.

DUCK HUNTING REMINISCENCES

Story No. Nine by Claude Fox Depicting Game Bird Life On Bay and Marshes

Little did I think when requested to write on this subject, that the task would prove almost an endless one, or in fact that any particular interest would be manifest in the articles which have already been published by Mr. O'Keefe in the Times-Gazette.

I realize now however that the only way for me to escape answering the many questions which have been asked me is to induce the editor of this paper to join hands, secrete the dates of our respective births, go up to the courthouse, register, and be ready to shoulder arms at the first call.

Only a few days ago, an old friend of mine, whom I have known for many years, stopped me on the street and requested that I should write an article telling the boys of today how to handle a shotgun properly in order to avoid accidents.

"My boy is a good shot," he said, "but he is a little bit careless in handling his gun." Will I comply with that request? You can just bet your last dollar that I will. Just watch story No. 10 my old gray haired friend from over the mountain. Tell that boy of yours to read it carefully, for by doing so he will obtain the information you wish him to have. It is the good fatherly advice my dad gave me on my thirteenth birthday, together with the knowledge acquired by myself during an experience of 37 years in handling firearms.

Another wishes me to be sure and tell the younger generation how to kill the ducks. I shall attempt to do so later on.

But the most difficult question for me to answer is one propounded by a old friend of mine, a boy just a trifle older than "Bill" and myself when we started out on our first duck hunt so many years ago. What do you suppose that lad wants to know? Here it is: "Who was the best duck shot you ever hunted with?" I am quoting from his letter.

To say the question is a difficult one to answer but mildly expresses my feelings in attempting to do so, and, if I must say it myself, it is, in my opinion, a rather unfair one to ask me, for the reason that with many of the boys and men heretofore and herein mentioned I have hunted very little, while there are others with whom I have shot continuously year after year and by reason of that fact, have had abundant opportunity to judge the shooting qualifications of these men. It is practically impossible to judge a man in hunting with him once, or even half a dozen times. I care not how proficient a person may become in the art of wing shooting, there will occur off-days; when the marksmanship of that individual will fall far below his standard.

Your question however will be answered my boy, to the best of my ability, and in doing so, you must distinctly understand that I am playing to no favorites; my selections are made after long experience with these men and close observation of their shooting, as applied to duck hunting.

During the succeeding years there were many others with whom I hunted beside those mentioned in my last article, that is to a greater or less extent. Some of these boys and men have passed on over that dark river called death, from the other side of which the quack of the wild duck, the deep call of the honker, or the shrill cry of the plover will not be heard by them again. When I stop to think it is indeed difficult to realize that so many of the old boys are gone. I can almost imagine that I should meet some of them upon the street.

There was Clint Waltemire of Belmont; Sam Nash Jr., whose father farmed the ranch lying between the Flood, Carnduff and Cavanaugh properties; Henry Horton, the old English tinmith from whom all us boys purchased our powder and shot; Henry Beeger Sr., founder of the Beeger Tanning Company; our late lamented tax collector and assessor respectively, Frank M. Grainger and Clarence D. Hayward, W. H. Crowe and Harry C. Lovie.

'Tis said the dead are soon forgotten. Perhaps there is much truth in that saying, if it refers to the recollections of those who's greed for gain looks naught but to the living, but not so with me, for as I sit here writing these reminiscences, memories cluster thick and fast around me concerning those who were in any way connected with the subject of which I write, and who's spirits have flown hence to meet their maker.

But there are many others who still live to verify what I write. M. F. Brown, head of the traffic squad of our county; Billy Casey of Menlo Park, W. J. Plump, Charles and Edie Gould, Billy Williamson, Hen. Beeger, George Elkenkotter, J. F. Johnston, George A. Genocchio, Guy P. Hull, Dave Flynn, J. A. Genocchio, Pete Larcoux, Henry and Edie Bullivant, Thos. Stott, his boys, Bill and Dave, and Peter Locustell, all of this city; William McDonald, the noted basso formerly of the Bostonian Opera Company, Walter R. Welch, now a resident of Stockton, George Uhl, Frank Marcus, John Connelly and Jim O'Brien of San Francisco.

Now for the question asked me which has remained unanswered. "Who was the best duck shot you ever hunted with?" When I have made my selection do not for a moment think that many of the others mentioned in this and preceding articles were not good shots. Quite to the contrary. Time and again have I watched them picking off with deadly accuracy the swift-winged birds of the bay and marshes as they would come skimming along in the early streaks of coming dawn, or the last rays of the flickering twilight. But that is not answering the question asked me.

In doing so I must go back to the days long since passed to find one who, at that time, I consider was the best duck shot then hunting upon the marshes of this county. That man, or boy, was Edward Cullen, brother of Con. and James Cullen of this city. Believe me, my boys of today, that lad could certainly shoot. We gave him the name of "Sure Shot Ed," a title which was justly due him. Across the Yukon river, directly opposite Eagle City, in the land of the midnight sun, lies the mortal remains of the man who could show us all how to bring down the birds we were so anxious to acquire.

A good wing shot is born, not made. Don't ever forget that. Do not however misunderstand me. It would be folly for me to assert that a boy who is destined to become a good shot could pick up his gun, go out on his first duck shoot and kill every bird that might chance to come his way. There is, I claim, a latent power born within those who will make good wing shots which develops quickly. The poor shot is minus that qualification, and he can go on shooting until eternity calls him home and never improve in his marksmanship one iota. The man or boy who will become a good shot kills his birds clean, quickly and with no unnecessary loss of ammunition. On the other hand those who are born poor shots use from six to eight cartridges to kill or retrieve a single bird. That is not duck shooting. It is blindly blazing away irrespective of results.

Among those whom I have mentioned there are three of my associates who, according to my humble opinion belong in "Class A" in regard to duck shooting. I mention their names simply because the opportunity occurred at many times to judge their qualifications as expert wing shots. They are Chase Littlejohn, Louis and George Genocchio of this city. Mr. Littlejohn has practically given up duck hunting for some years past. My memory is not so faulty however but what I remember that the swiftest green winged teal had no business coming within range but what Chase would claim him as his own.

Of the two Genocchio boys, Louis and George, it is difficult to make any distinction. Having hunted with both of them for years the opportunity has been given me to judge their duck shooting, as the school boy would say, from A to Z. It is however difficult for me to decide between them. As I have previously said, a man who is a good wing shot will occasionally have what we call an off-day. There is one thing I will vouch for and that is this, if there are any two men within the confines of San Mateo county today, or rather those who will be here on October 15th of this year, when the web-foot season opens, who desire to show their skill in the duck shooting line, just trot them out.

I do not make this assertion blindly, or by reason of the long acquaintance and friendship existing between us. The judgment which I have the right to exercise, is based solely on the merits of the man behind the gun. The fact that the youngest of those boys was practically my pupil creates in my mind no false pride. I would not hesitate to day to call either of them down if they made a clean miss of a bird coming in to their decoys, that I considered a good, easy shot; nor would I be backward in exclaiming "good boy" if either of them made a clean kill of a teal, sprig or widegun hurtling along through the air at about forty per minute. Do not think for a single moment that those boys are going to hold their honors long. Time is fleeting and if you stop to realize it, very fast. There are two boys who live here right in your midst, kids I shall call them, who are going to make crack wing shots, if they are not already. The latent power is born within them, and they will some day be at the head of the class, so far as duck shooting is concerned.

Shall I tell you who they are? I have no hesitancy in so doing. Now don't think your name will be mentioned, for it will not. Those boys are Seymour Elkenkotter and George Tribolet. I have observed their shooting over decoys while seining in the bay. Watch them carefully as they grow older and then tell me whether or not I am correct in the assertion which I make.

How I wish that the boys of today could start out at the opening of the next duck season and find the quack-quacks as numerous on the marshes of this county as did my first pal, "Bill" and I in a season to which there was no opening, way back in 1878-1879.

The Menlo booth at the K. of C. Fiesta at San Mateo last week took off all honors by taking in the most money and the general returns show that over $2,000 has been realized.

REDWOOD RETROSPECTION

To the editor of the Times-Gazette:

Claude Fox is right when he asserts in his charming reminiscences of the palmy hunting days of yore around Redwood City, that the Hall boys were gravely infected with "duckitis." In the 70's, we came from the McGarvey ranch full of the woodcraft of the hills, and wide open for the infection of the marsh malady. We caught the contagion from Joe Leathers, who introduced us to the "First Fence" ponds, the fondest nocturnal haunts of the toothsome teal. With him, we planned means of baffling the benumbing cold of the midnight air, and we built boats such as the gaudy "Wild Duck" that outsped every craft on the creek, but precipitated every boatswain and crew that ever boarded her into the briny deep, except its builders, nor even respecting the natty Sunday suit of "Bob", now General Walsh.

And here is where we must confess of having passed the "duckitis" germ to Claude. His father, George W. Fox, was, perhaps, the truest epicure on the Pacific Coast. He recognized at once our sureness in securing the jaunty teal and our need of ammunition money, so he contracted every season with us to take just six (no more, no less) of the plumpest teal we bagged every Saturday, at a price quite gratifying to our boyish finances. As we were too loyal to school duties to yield to the lure of the fens on schooldays, Mr. Fox had to seek Charley "Pikin", if the hunger for duck meat assailed him mid week, and this was how little Claude got tangled up with his George Washington problems. Every Saturday we faithfully replenished the Fox larder with wild waterfowl, and often little fair-haired Claude would meet us at the gate with his large, asking eyes that prompted us to tell him of the will 'o' the wisp and other mystical things that only cross the way of the midnight hunter in the quagmire. Claude would hug the lifeless little quackers, he would press the satiny hoods of the little fen-tops to his cheek, he would twine his tiny fingers through the green and blue plumes of the wings, and thus the lad passed through the kindergarten of duckland.

Not many years passed by ere we found this little fellow, crouching in our wideopen fields and stalking our winding duck-sloughs, with a vim and persistence that exceeded our own, and an ear and eye and a deadly bead that surpassed ours, and later we saw him a bolder and deeper invader of the haunts of the ducks until he roused them from their most isolated feeding-grounds, and then we listened to the call of our life work in sternfaced pedagogy, and left the delirium of the reed-lands to the more artful and ardent scion of our epicurean benefactor.

Yours recollectively,
Henry Hall.
Corte Madera, Cal., May 22, 1917.

MENLO PARK NEWS OF ALL SORTS

Doings at Peninsula Garden Spot As Told in Breezy Style By Our Reporters

Robert Hale, a member of the firm of Hale Brothers, has purchased a portion of the Drexler tract on Santa Cruz avenue. He intends to erect a handsome residence this summer.

During the week a baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ehrman at Atherton. The new arrival makes a group of five handsome boys, whose mother is an unusual attractive woman.

The all night dance in Triumph hall this evening is to be largely attended by Native Sons from all points given under the auspices of Menlo Parlor, N. S. G. W. An enjoyable time is assured all.

I. Sepeda, an old resident of this state and father of Peter Sepeda, employed in the Menlo Park garage, was killed in a runaway at Morgan Hill last Tuesday. The deceased was well known in the Santa Clara valley.

Mrs. William Hand and Mrs. Margaret Hand desire to thank all the kind friends and neighbors for their assistance and many acts of kindness during the illness and at the death of their husband and son. They also feel grateful for the wealth of floral offerings.

Henry Harkins, youngest son of Mrs. Harkins and the late Major Harkins, graduated with honors from Santa Clara University during the week. He finished a four year course in the electrical engineering department and will follow that profession in San Francisco. He graduated at the head of his class.

Among those who graduated with high honors from Stanford University this year was Charles H. Meyer, young son of J. Henry Meyer, the capitalist. Young Meyer had his degree conferred last January for proficiency. Edwin Willmann also graduated with honors from the department of English. He attended St. Patrick Seminary some years ago.

C. A. Brady has been awarded a contract to erect a two-story residence in Ringwood Park, near the Flood property, for Mrs. Violet Foster. When completed the building will cost $10,000. Mr. Brady has already begun work on the structure which must be completed in 90 days. Mrs. Foster is a daughter of Mrs. Fife who built an attractive home at Atherton last year. Mr. Brady does the work.

Thomas Reynolds is at Holy Cross cemetery daily clearing the graves of weeds, grass, etc. Anyone desiring his services may see him at the cemetery or at his home on Oak Grove avenue in the evenings.

Talbot C. Walker, the millionaire lumberman of Atherton, has enlisted in the army and when called will go in the capacity of teamster to serve his country. Mr. Walker feels that he owes a duty to his country and that his money does not exempt him from this duty. Such patriotism is to be admired for in enlisting Mr. Walker is sacrificing his big business interests which needs his close attention. His mother, Mrs. Cyrus Walker of San Mateo, is also making a mother's sacrifice in giving her only son to the country. She is now far advanced in age and the sacrifice is a tremendous one, but like her son, she is intensely patriotic and is willing that her son should go in defense of the flag and for the protection of the liberty of mankind. Charles Keeney, a brother-in-law of Mr. Walker, has also joined the colors and is awaiting orders to report for duty. Mrs. Walker, the beautiful wife of Mr. Walker, was formerly Miss Mary Keeney, is saddened by the thought that she must give up her husband but her love of country is so strong that she is willing to surrender all for her country's cause. The beautiful Marion Zelle, guest at the Walker home, will most likely go to France as a Red Cross nurse. Miss Zelle is a niece of E. W. Hopkins.

One of the most successful events in the history of Menlo Parlor, N. D. G. W. took place last Wednesday evening when the parlor celebrated its twenty anniversary. Bonita Parlor N. D. G. W. and Menlo Parlor N. D. G. W. were its guests. Cards were the feature of the evening. After the games a delightful banquet was served. Beautiful roses and flags were the table decorations. At the conclusion of the banquet the large birthday cake, made especially for the occasion, was cut by Elizabeth Lucas and Mrs. Catherine Derry, the first president of the parlor. She also acted as toastmistress. Harry B. Morey Jr. and M. F. X. Kavanaugh ably responded to the toast "Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W." J. B. Read of Redwood Parlor and Mrs. M. E. Read of Bonita Parlor spoke in behalf of their respective organizations, taking the opportunity to congratulate the young parlor on its success. Others who spoke at the banquet were: Julia Bowles, Elizabeth Casey, Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. C. T. Maloney, Rita Schenkel, Laura Foley, Philip Blanchard. The committee having the affair in charge was Catherine Maloney, Julia Bowles, Catherine Derry and Jennie Michel.

William Hand on Sunday last passed to the great beyond after months of patient suffering and pain. With true Christian fortitude, however, he bore his distress knowing that he would soon pass to the other and better world where suffering and pain are unknown and where sorrow never comes and where he would meet his loved ones gone before.

William Hand was the son of Margaret and the late Dominick Hand and was born in Menlo Park nearly 36 years ago. He grew to manhood here, attending the local grammar school and after graduating he apprenticed himself to the plumbing trade, for many years being employed by the late Joseph Ahlert. Several years ago he married Miss Mary Walsh of Palo Alto, who with a daughter Margaret aged five years, and his aged mother, Margaret Hand, survive him. The deceased was a prominent member of Menlo Parlor, N. S. G. W., under whose auspices the funeral took place on Tuesday morning. The members of the organization met at the residence before the body was removed to the Church of the Nativity and read the impressive ritual service of the order. In full regalia the members marched with solemn tread before the hearse to the church where they formed a guard of honor and escorted the remains to the altar. After the mass the long cortege wended its way to Holy Cross cemetery where again the Native Sons took charge and read the beautiful committal service of the society. The final benediction was pronounced by Father Ryan. William Hand was a light hearted, cheerful, buoyant spirited youth who loved his family, his friends and his native state. Those who knew him intimately loved him most for they were aware of his numerous good qualities of mind and heart. The devoted wife, loving mother and little daughter have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

LURE OF LA HONDA REDWOODS
Since the opening of the San Mateo county boulevard system La Honda has become familiar to thousands of people who never heard of it before, and it is being discovered by countless people that there is no more beautiful mountainous country anywhere. Although the trees in the Big Basin and at the Mariposa Grove are larger, they are not finer nor are the streams more attractive than those of the La Honda country. For several years people have been making active inquiry for small pieces of land which they could have for their very own and every one has wanted both redwoods and creek, at a price of a few hundred dollars. The University Realty Company is apparently solving the problem by offering a strip along the Alpine Creek in units of an acre or less, and predict that this will add materially to La Honda's popularity. Their property extends from Geo. Pope's estate for a mile along the Alpine road to its junction with the Pescadero road and each piece of the property has from 100 to 600 feet of frontage upon the best fishing stream in the district. It has been found that property of this description proves a good investment. The late Clarence Hayward purchased a couple of acres on the La Honda road from The University Realty Company, improved it prettily with a log cabin, doing most of the work himself, and his estate recently sold the place at auction in the probate court for about double the actual cost.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES' INSTITUTE

The San Mateo county school Trustees' Institute held in the superior courtroom last Saturday was the most successful one ever held in this county. Mr. Cloud called the meeting to order at 9:30 and there were representatives from 28 of the 36 elementary districts while all four of the high school districts were represented. Mr. Cloud addressed the trustees and told of some of the things he would like to see in the schools of San Mateo county. He then introduced Superintendent J. W. Cagney of Hollister who gave a splendid talk on the needs of clean surroundings and on teaching citizenship. Mrs. J. W. Henshall of the state library told of the advantages of the schools becoming part of the county library system. A short intermission was then taken and on reconvening at 1:40 a uniform time of opening and closing the schools of the county was adopted by the trustees. This program will go into effect next term. Senator M. B. Johnson took up the subject of new school laws. Mr. Cagney again spoke and gave a wonderfully fine talk on the trustee's responsibilities. It was a genuine, hearty patriotic address as was also Senator Johnson's who followed and the trustees were greatly impressed. A half hour of questions, answers and discussions concerning the educational policy of the county.
